

The Institute for Leadership in Capital Projects

i-lincp.wildapricot.org

The Institute for Leadership in Capital Projects (I-LinCP) is a non-profit organization serving to better the capital projects industry. Through education, development, and collaboration, the Institute for Leadership in Capital Projects (I-LinCP) is a catalyst and change agent in the capital projects industry. We couple ideas that support industry leaders with solution-oriented ideas to improve the planning, design, delivery, and operations of capital projects.

Our Mission:

Evolve the capital projects industry through sharing of knowledge for optimized leadership, delivery, and performance. We accomplish this through education, research and development, collaborative Forums, and other events, products and services.

Vision

To be the leading source for solutions that achieve capital project excellence and performance and that deliver exceptional value to capital project stakeholders.

Values

- Agility, collaboration, future vision, innovation, inquiring, respectful, social responsibility
- Opportunities for leadership are available. Students are encouraged to participate. I-LinCP members and representatives are encouraged to promote I-LinCP work through alternative venues and to speak at related conferences.

The Institute for Leadership in Capital Projects (I-LinCP):

- Uses inclusive, collaborative methods with a consortium of members who are involved in capital projects and facilities.
- Offers educational and leadership growth opportunities, including co-learning between students and professionals.
- Conducts initiatives and research and development projects that result in more effective and sustainable processes, tools and techniques.
- Organizes conferences, discussions, and other knowledge-sharing venues through a variety of technologies and methods.
- Partners and affiliates with other public, private, and industry organizations and communities to create positive relationships and synergistic outcomes.

Value to Members, Stakeholders, Partners and Communities:

- I-LinCP members, project stakeholders, organizational partners and communities receive the value from capital projects with less waste in time and fiscal resources, and improved leadership and sustainability.
- I-LinCP supports other nonprofits, community activities and projects through financial and service resources.

Areas of Focus:

- Best practices (e.g. Lean)
- Building effective teams
- Collaborative processes
- Communications and accountability
- Community relations
- Conflict and dispute resolution
- Industry improvements at the local, state, and national levels
- Knowledge Sharing
- Leadership and ethics
- Pre-project planning
- Program and project management
- Project delivery processes
- Project funding and financing
- Sustainability, energy efficiency, and green building
- Tools and technologies
- Trust-building

Connecting and Collaborating:

In-person and virtual meetings and gatherings provide opportunities for learning and sharing of ideas and information, lessons-learned, new developments, and formulation of new Initiatives. These take the form of conferences, such as the already successful LinCP Forums, round-tables, and person-to-person meetings.

White Papers and Publications:

White papers and research papers are produced and published, which help establish its members as expert sources for industry information.